Case study #5

The Blind Date

Henry had looked forward to visiting his cousin, Warren, for several months. They had practically grown up together, but had not seen much of each other since Warren’s family moved away two years before. As soon as Henry had dropped his luggage off in his cousin’s room, Warren told him about his “hot” date for the party. Henry had a great time on his date and wanted to see her again. Two weeks later, Henry noticed a white discharge from his penis and felt pain when he urinated. Henry was really nervous but decided he needed to call her and find out if she was having any symptoms. When he finally got in touch with her, she said, “I do not have any symptoms!”. They ended up talking for a while and when they hung up he felt relieved. He decided that it was nothing to worry about.

Questions to be answered:

- 1. Should Henry be concerned? Why or Why not?
- 2. Is it possible that Henry could have an STD?
- 3. What should Henry do? Be specific.
- 4. Indicate how you know what STD it is.
